

ASTMH Committee on Global Health (ACGH) ACGH Award for Research Support

The ASTMH Committee on Global Health (ACGH) is excited to announce the ACGH Award for Research Support. ACGH aims to address health issues that unfavorably affect underserved and under-resourced populations, including traditional tropical medicine and hygiene topics, as well as globalization's impact on health, health disparities, and global health partnerships.

The ACGH Award for Research Support award is made possible by generous funding from ASTMH (the Society) along with your membership contributions. This award is aimed at all levels of trainees who are working toward ACGH goals mention in the ACGH Strategic Plan. The ACGH Award for Research Support is designed to support research expenses for trainees who have projects approved by a university/research institute that are currently active or that will start during 2023. Trainees can use the award to support travel to field sites, purchase equipment, software, reagents or supplies, or to cover other expenses that will enhance their research project.

Funding

Three awards of up to $2,000 US will be awarded to augment research studies. The award will be delivered via ACH or wire transfer to the recipient in June 2023.

Selection

The recipients will be chosen on the relevance and impact of their project to global health, specifically, how well the research project advances the ACGH Strategic Plan. Any awardees who attend the ASTMH Annual Meeting must share a brief presentation (~2 minutes) summarizing their project at the ACGH business meeting. Women and non-U.S. citizens from LMICs are encouraged to apply.

Eligibility

- Open to any researcher who is a trainee (undergraduate to post-doctoral fellow, including physicians in their residency years), or within four years after their training is completed.
- Must be a member of ASTMH and ACGH. Not a member? Join today.

Submission details:
